Addie Lucile Moore.

Miss Addie Lucile Moore was born March 25, 1881, and on November 5, 1901, passed over into the home beyond, where mother, father and sister had already been gathered in, thus leaving on this side to mourn her going away, two brothers, Charles and Henry, and one sister, Miss Nettie.

Miss A. Lucile at the time of her death was holding an important and lucrative position in St. Paul, at which place, in a strange city, in a strange land, and comparatively among strangers she breathed her last, but she was not alone, for God's book says, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

Miss Nettie was summoned to St. Paul by wire, but ere she reached the bedside of her sister, she had crossed the river.

The remains were brought to Maryville and taken to the home of D. R. Eversole, where the funeral was conducted by her pastor, Rev. C. W. Weidell, from the text, "Her sun went down while it was yet day."

Miss A. Lucile united with the M. E. Church South in Maryville when quite young and remained such until called to that broader and better life. Wherever her lot was cast she was greatly beloved, and lifelong attachments were formed. Those who knew her best speak of her as one worthy of confidence, friendship and love.

The many floral tributes sent by her former friends and associates speak a language more eloquent than words. Literally her body reposed beneath a wilderness of flowers, mingling their fragrance as if in sympathy with those who mourned. The clerks of the Eversole Dry Goods Co. as an expression of their love and friendship, their personal loss because of the departed, and as a token of sympathy to the members of the broken family, caused to be placed beside the bier a broken wheel, made of beautiful roses, emblematic of broken families and broken ties on earth.

Her kindred and many warm friends reverently bore her body to the cemetery at Wilcox, where she sleeps beside her mother. xx

Floral Tributes at Miss Moore's Funeral.

The floral offerings at Miss Nettie Moore's funeral were many and beautiful. Many friends and acquaintances of the young woman who could not attend the funeral visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eversole last Wednesday morning to take a last look at the familiar face in its casket, and to bring their tribute of flowers. Among the many offerings were: Fourteen American Beauty roses from the seven young women in the Eversole dry goods store; pink and white roses and ferns from Lewis Siegel of St. Joseph; a yard bouquet of white roses and ferns from Tootle, Wheeler & Motter of St. Joseph; lavender, heliotropa and white roses from Pansy Camp of Royal Neighbors; cross and crown emblem from Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Eversole; and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eversole; wreath of pink and white roses from the Sprague family; white roses and ferns, Mr. and Mrs. Ed G. Orear; pink carnations, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Smith; pink carnations, Mrs. Peter Mergen; large broken wheel in pink, white and green, from the fifteen employes of the Eversole store. There were many offerings with no cards.

Telegrams of regret were received by the Eversole's from several eastern wholesale houses with whom Miss Moore had business dealings were received Wednesday.

Those attending the burial services at Wilcox were: Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Eversole and daughter, Miss Maude Eversole, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eversole, the members of the Royal Neighbors, from whom were the pall-bearers, and the employes of Eversole's store.

DEATH OF NETTIE MOORE

Passed Away Suddenly at Residence of R. W. Eversole in Maryville Monday Evening.

POPULAR BUSINESS WOMEN

Had Been Employed in Eversole Dry Goods Store Many Years and Was Important Factor in That Establishment.

In the sudden and unexpected death of Miss Nettie Moore in this city Monday evening the community received a shock. While it was generally known that she was convalescing from what had been a severe illness for a few days, no one knew her condition was in the least critical.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at the South Methodist church and the body taken to Wilcox for burial.

Few people engaged in the business world in Maryville could be missed more than Miss Moore. For the past twenty years she has been head saleswoman in D. R. Eversole's dry goods store, and her acquaintance naturally extended far and near. Not only was she the favorite with many because of her ability as an expert saleswoman, but because of her sincere desire to please customers. Hers was a kind and patient disposition under any trial. After the first few years of her clerkship in the store Miss Moore became valuable at the desk in book work and general correspondence with firms with whom the proprietor dealt. Later, when she became a buyer for the enterprise, making two trips a year to eastern markets and frequent trips to nearby cities, she became a staff upon which D. R. Eversole and his son, R. W., felt compelled to lean.

Planned to Rest.

Miss Moore's work became necessarily heavy so that this fall, when she felt the need of rest, preparations were made to spend some days in Wilcox with the family of her brother Henry. It was while en route to Mr. Moore's home, three weeks ago, that the young woman was seized with cerebral hemorrhage and was carried into the Metcalf home in North Mulberry street, where she remained unconscious for some time. The sick woman soon improved under the doctor's care and was taken to R. W. Eversole's home, where she had roomed and boarded ever since the new residence was completed in South Buchanan street. For several days Miss Moore had been able to be dressed and about her room, and it was expected that she would soon be back at her place in the store. She slept well Sunday night and awoke Monday morning between 4 and 5 o'clock with a second attack like the first. Physicians were hastily summoned and all that medical aid could do was done for her until death relieved her sufferings about 4:30 o'clock Monday evening.

Miss Moore was born in Fullerton, Neb., and had resided here twenty-five years. She is survived by two brothers, Henry and Charles Moore, and had an uncle, Andrew Jensen.

Her mother and two sisters are buried at Wilcox.
